Click on CITED REFERENCE SEARCH
In the Cited Author box, type in the author’s name in the format last-name first-initial* (e.g. einstein a*) and in the Cited Year box type in the year of the work. To input the name of the journal in the Cited Work box, find the correct abbreviation using the journal abbreviation list link.
Select the references you wish to include and click on Finish Search.

Note: Articles are often mis-cited in the literature, select all versions of the article to get a more complete picture.
Note: The citations listed will only be from journals covered by the Web of Science database. Web of Science only indexes core journals, and it does not cover other types of publications such as books, dissertations, technical reports, patents etc. You can also use the Analyze Results feature (located on the upper right) to determine trends in the citing set of articles.
